of which it was two-thirds.

In the general decrease between 1890 and 1900 not a single state in the north Atlantic division took part. In seven other states, also, there was no decrease. In only six states—Maryland. Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky and Indiana—did the proportion decrease in each of the five decades. and in only Delaware, District of Columbia, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Oregon and Colorado did it follow the tendency of the country as a whole—that is, increase from 1850 to 1860 and decrease in four succeeding decades. of which it was two-thirds.

1900, for the United States as a whole, the proportion of children was only two-thirds as great in cities as in the country districts. In the North At-lantic division, however, it was almost as great in the cities as in the country Half as Large.

In the southern divisions it is hardly more than half as large in the cities as in the country, while in the far west the difference is intermediate in amount. "This," it is explained, "is probably due in large measure to the fact that the immigrant population who have been swarming into the northern cities of recent years, espe-cially into the cities of the North Atlantic states, have been multiplying by numerous births with much rapidity while the corresponding laboring class which has immigrated to southern cities from the surrounding country districts has not been thus increasing."

A comparison is made between the proportion of children born of native proportion of children born of native mothers to 1.000 native women of child-bearing age and the proportion of chil-dren born to foreign-born mothers to 1.000 foreign born women of child-bearing age. In 1900 the former proportion was 462, the latter 710; the difference indicating the greater fecundity of foreign-born women.

The bulletin continues: "The conparison also indicates that the total decrease in the fecundity of white wo-men between 1890 and 1900 was the result of a dcrease for native white wo-men partly offset by an increase for foreign-born white women. "In the Atlantic division, however,

Detective Sergeant Petrosino and Antonio Carraciolo called at the district attorney's office today to ask about Marchette's case. They were informed that in any case Marchette would have to serve his sentence of eleven months and twenty-nine days, and as many days additional as there remain dollars unpaid of his fine of $500 before he can be turned over to the Italian authorities.

Carraciolo says that Marchette was hired to kill his father by political opponents.

The elder Carraciolo was killed in August, 1896, during the campaign for the election of a member of the Italian chamber of deputies.

The search for the murderer has led the young man from Italy to Buenos Ayres, then successively to Houston.

In Fardon's early round, to study the course, the club's two best ama teurs played along with him. The studied the game of the visitor wit uch attention that they refused point blank to be his opponents in the match.
"We won't be made chopping blocks to make an Environ holiday." was the terse way one of the amateurs expressed it. "You must catch someone eise for Fardon to use his ax on."
There was a crowd gathered from far and near to see the match. Belles and matrons in light dresses and under billowy parasols of lace. with escorts in flannels, were sauntering toward the first tee from the hotels and cottages; folks of equally gay raiment, although swaddled in dusters and rubber coats, came whizzing to the club house in automobiles, and all sorts of vehicles, from four-in-hand coaches to the sta-tion hacks were also rolling up laden with sightseers.

The committeemen were distracted.

"Yep, dat's it, but his real name ain't Squint. Dat's only wot we call him." explained the imperturbable youth. "It is not a half bad suggestion, gen-tlemen," was the opinion of the chair-man. "The boys between them could probably outplay any of our amateurs At all events we must close with the offer or declare the match off.
